SUMMARY

I'm a marketing professional with close to 10 years of experience helping businesses grow their brands and compete effectively in the market. I work on developing and executing marketing and brand strategies that combine market insights, clear positioning, and measurable ROI. A big part of my role involves planning and managing marketing resources efficiently, aligning short- and long-term goals, and working closely with sales teams to ensure marketing efforts translate into real business outcomes. Currently, I'm leading marketing and brand strategy initiatives for a prominent system integrator in the Audio-Visual industry, focusing on B2B markets across the APAC region. My work spans both online and offline marketing—ranging from digital communications to industry events—along with managing monthly, quarterly, and annual marketing budgets. I also collaborate closely with OEMs and manufacturers to design joint marketing activities that effectively showcase combined solutions and attract the right prospects. Across everything I do, I make sure the brand message stays consistent, relevant, and strong across all channels. Simply put, I enjoy defending brands against competition and helping them stand out with clarity and purpose.
